Part 2: Learning and Teaching
	· ····································
Learning Outcomes	On successful completion of this module students will be able to demonstrate the following:
	 An analytical & critical understanding of the causes and the constraints of economic growth and economic development for low and middle-income countries. Issues such as corruption, terrorism, civil war, geographical location will be analysed, all of which are common themes amongst many research centred NGOs as well as private and public international aid agencies. (Component A)
	2. The ability to analyse the effectiveness of development economic theory and national/international aid development policy that can stimulate growth and development. This will provide students with a practical insight into how aid can be effective or ineffective and the strategy to adopt at the individual, village, town or national level. (Component A)
	 An ability to critically evaluate alternative government economic policies for dealing with problems of underdevelopment and to assess these policies in both an historical and contemporary context. (Component A, Component B)

	 An understanding that economic growth is not a sufficient condition for economic development and providing alternative schools of thought. These alternative views on development economics and development studies are important and expanding areas of interest amongst aid and environmental agencies and development economic think-tanks. (Component A, Component B)
	In addition the educational experience may explore, develop, and practice but not formally discretely assess the following

Contact Hours/Scheduled Hours	There are 3 hours of contact time per week, comprising a lecture and a tutorial
Teaching and Learning Methods	The lecture will sometimes be driven by theory and sometimes by current empirical work and evidence. In the workshop students will engage in a variety of teaching and learning methods, for example, group presentations, practical classes examining in depth case studies of particular developing countries and working through set questions which address the core topics covered in the lectures.
	In addition staff will be available during the tutorials and during their office hours (2 hours a week) for face to face meetings.
	Queries and extended discussions with staff can also be approached virtually through e-mail.
	Extensive use will be made of Blackboard for weekly guided independent study work; to support students' learning; to facilitate interactions between students e.g. for group project work and to provide feedback with quizzes and forums.
	Students will also be directed towards the University Library online Study Skills resources for the development of skills appropriate to the level and style of the module. In addition a number of e-learning resources will also be used: The online Study Skills website at

Part 3: Assessment
Assessment Strategy	This module deploys a mix of formative and summative assessment. Formative assessment takes various forms and will occur throughout the module; it may include peer feedback on informal activities.
	The formative assessment used in this module consists of seminar presentations, this gives the students a good opportunity to refine their presentation skills and it also allows for feedback on the content of the presentation.
	Summative assessment will be multi-faceted. The first opportunity for summative assessment is an essay. The inclusion of a coursework element in the assessment is important since it gives the students an opportunity to investigate a particular issue in detail. Furthermore, coursework enables the students to refine their writing and presentation skills. The essay will relate to learning outcomes 3 and 4. The examination will assess the entire module content and will occur at the end of the module.
