The law applicable to the contract.

N.B. Please note that the whole of the syllabus may not be taught in any one year. Selection of topics will depend on staff current research and interests.

Teaching and Learning Methods: The learning context is student-centred and utilises a variety of techniques to encourage independent thought and constructive criticism. Dialogue is promoted between student and lecturer in an inter-active relationship which emphasises the two-way flow of information and criticism.

Subject to the requirements of the Professional Bodies, it is not necessarily envisaged that every topic in the syllabus will be covered in any one academic year.

Areas which have topical significance could, therefore, be developed at greater length and less important areas delineated in outline only.

Students will be expected to conduct research with both traditional and electronic sources and will be instructed how to do this both during the Programme as a whole and, where necessary, within the module.

Student preparation:

Workshops: Workshop preparation tasks include working individually, in pairs or in small groups.

Students will be given seminar sheets/case studies in advance of their workshops which will be centred on the analysis of cases, statutes, as appropriate. The material will usually be problem or discussion title-based. Supplementary material (usually of a problem-solving nature) may be provided in the workshop.

Directed reading will be suggested along with internet sources and video material as appropriate.

Students are expected to make full use of their independent learning time to reflect critically upon the subject and to develop their own ideas.

Operation and purpose:

Workshops: Workshops will involve problem-solving and the analysis and synthesis of conceptual and contextual issues, through plenary discussion and presentations by individual students or groups of students.

STUDENT AND ACADEMIC SERVICES

Students are expected to fully participate in workshop discussions, which will cover the controversial and difficult areas of the subject.

We see the function of workshops to be:

(a) to monitor the acquisition by students of the knowledge, understanding and skills mentioned under the Learning Outcomes; and

(b) to facilitate and enhance the acquisition of that knowledge, understanding and skills and to foster deeper learning.

(c) to allow students to evaluate, analyse and synthesise legal materials in an interactive environment and to facilitate their appreciation of the levels of variation of opinion which may be generated in legal discussion.

Other learning activities:

Students will be expected to pursue independent and directed study between class contact sessions.

Students will be encouraged to engage in extra-curricular activities such as debating and mooting.

Contact Hours: Lectures/workshop: 3 hours per week.

Part 3: Assessment

Component B: (50% of module mark) Coursework of 2500 words

This is an extended essay based on a practical/problem question. Students will analyse parts of modified documents to identify the different legal issues involved in an international transaction. They will need to look at domestic law, international principles and conventions, and apply these to practical problems so as to arrive at conclusions. They will need to do research in order to get to the correct conclusions.

Component A: (50% of module mark) Coursework - two problem questions (2500 words)

This method of assessing was chosen so that the students can actually deal with "real-life" problems in this area of law should they wish to eventually work in the field of International Trade. This will advance the employability skills of these students.
