Part 2: Description
Students design and produce a research project that develops a specialised interest in contemporary critical debates and contexts for contemporary creative production. Workshops and lectures support students in developing their ideas, designing and implementing research projects, and provide guidance on independent study. Individual supervision tutorials support on-going research, critical reading and writing.
Part 3: Assessment
Assessment strategies within the programme that this module contributes to reflect the Faculty of Art, Creative Industries and Education's philosophy that considers assessment to be part of the learning process. Formative and summative assessments are designed to provide the opportunity for students to understand and reflect upon their achievements, and to support the monitoring of progress by tutors and students. Assessment methods used are varied, are relevant to demonstrating achievement to both industry and academic stakeholders, and form a coherent programme of assessment that is designed to offer students the maximum opportunity to demonstrate the skills, knowledge and experience that they have gained through the course of study, as well as to support ongoing continuous improvement in the individual creative practice and development as practitioner- researchers.

The principal of 'learning through making' is core to the learning strategies in the Department of Art and Design. These learning activities are then expanded into and through an exploration of contemporary critical practice in relevant and related subject areas. This module allows students to demonstrate their abilities in this area of study as related to the learning outcomes.

At assessment students are expected to present evidence of work that demonstrates engagement with the minimum number of learning hours for the module (contact and independent study hours).

Forms of assessment used in the programme of study overall include:

- Presentation and participation in studio critique
- Poster presentation
- Group and individual presentation
- Written assignments – forms of writing relevant to the creative industries including academic/essay and industry focused/report writing.
- Group critiques
- Peer and self assessment
- Evaluative and reflective outcomes, including visual, verbal and written.

Formative and summative assessment activities that involve students participating in the evaluation of presented work (their own and others) take place throughout the programme. Participation in and attendance at these sessions forms part of the assessed content of the module as a result of this.

Feedback (verbal and/or in writing) at regular points throughout the module provides students with a clear understanding of their progress and advice about how this can be improved.

Plagiarism is designed out of the student writing process through the following methods:

- Plagiarism issues are discussed at group seminars
- Safeassign software can be accessed by students prior to submission enabling students to ensure they are not in breach of plagiarism guidelines.
- The Link to Safeassign is in module handbooks which are available via Blackboard and students are briefed as to how to access this link.
- The module leader is the Assessment Offences Officer for Art and Design and so up to date information is made available to students via Blackboard and via their individual tutors.
