Part 2: Description

Overview: Not applicable

Features: Not applicable

Educational aims: This module will introduce students to theoretical insights on the topic of media and crime . The purpose of this is to equip students with an understanding of the role of the media in shaping how we understand crime and criminality, which we will do in relation to various different media and contemporary issues.

The module is designed broadly in line with the purview of the journal; Crime Media, Culture (CMC). The module focuses on two key aspects of the journal's remit: that it is a key arena for the publication of work in the area of Cultural Criminology, and the methodological approaches that are aligned to this area of criminological research.

Outline syllabus: In the course of the module students will cover:

The historical development of the relationship between the media and crime for example, the proliferation of crime stories in various modes of media content.

Key theoretical contributions to the understanding of media and crime, for example, the media effects debate.

Topical issues related to this area of enquiry as directed by CMC and other notable sources, for example media coverage of organised crime.

Part 3: Teaching and learning methods

Teaching and learning methods: See Assessment and Hours

Module Learning outcomes: On successful completion of this module students will achieve the following learning outcomes.

MO1 Develop an understanding of how media, crime and culture intersect.

MO2 Demonstrate an understanding of methods relevant to the study of media and crime.

MO3 Discuss in an analytical way, the role and function of the media in developing public discourse about crime.

MO4 Appraise the coverage of topical issues related to media and crime

Hours to be allocated: 150

Contact hours:

Independent study/self-guided study = 117 hours

Face-to-face learning = 33 hours

Total = 150

Reading list: The reading list for this module can be accessed at readinglists.uwe.ac.uk via the following link <https://uwe.rl.talis.com/index.html>

Part 4: Assessment

Assessment strategy: Students will complete a 3,000-word portfolio. The portfolio should be on a topic of their choosing, selected from within the module syllabus or relevant to the syllabus (for example, media representations of sex offenders in the UK) . The portfolio should comprise two parts:

Part A: An analytical essay discussing the chosen topic with reference to relevant academic theory (approx. 1500 words)

Part B: An analysis of media content relevant to their chosen topic, demonstrating an appropriate methodological technique. (approx. 1500 words)

The nature of the portfolio is derived from the learning outcomes of the module in that it encourages students to practice and present methodological skills alongside developing their analytical skills . This method of assessment also allows students a level of flexibility in tailoring the topics of the work to their own interests which is in line with the development of independent study skills that we would expect students to begin building at this level of study. This supports the broader programme learning outcomes at this level and helps students to build skills pertinent to study at Level 6.

There will be opportunities through workshops and informal supervision for students to receive formative feedback which they can use to inform their summative work.
