Part 2: Description

Overview: This module completes the MA in Career Development, enabling participants to develop themselves as a researcher practitioner and conduct a small-scale study and have an informed view of possibilities for dissemination, leading to impact.

Features: Not applicable

Educational aims: This module aims to enable participants to progress onto conducting a study of a particular topic of professional interest of own choosing. It develops the knowledge and skills to disseminate research findings and contribute to the evidence base of the career development profession.

This will result in participants developing their professional identity as a researcher practitioner within the field.

Outline syllabus: Participants are expected to work through online study material, which will include:

- introduction to the module and supervisory arrangements
- how to structure a dissertation
- general progress of work expectations
- feedback from participants and any specific emerging issues

Participants will also be expected to engage in one-to-one supervision meetings, which will include:

- advice and guidance on progress
- dissertation expectations
- feedback

Part 3: Teaching and learning methods

Teaching and learning methods: The module will be delivered online using appropriate learning platforms to facilitate predominantly independent study.

The research project will normally be an empirical research study, but there will be the option for desk-based research, with guidance from an allocated research supervisor.

The independent learning will be supplemented by a small number of online sessions from the module leader.

Module Learning outcomes: On successful completion of this module students will achieve the following learning outcomes.

MO1 Produce a comprehensive and critical review of the relevant existing literature

MO2 Design and execute a well-planned research study based on a critical understanding of appropriate methodology

MO3 Conduct research that complies with accepted ethical guidelines

MO4 Critically evaluate and reflect on the strengths and weaknesses of own research practice

MO5 Contribute to the evidence-based research debate within the field of career development

Hours to be allocated: 300

Contact hours:

Independent study/self-guided study = 300 hours

Total = 300
