Teaching and Learning Methods: Students are introduced to each topic through the medium of a 1 hour lecture which may be interactive in part.

Full Time Students are then required to prepare for the 2 hour interactive workshop through reading the materials provided (the Powerpoint slides for the lecture (sometimes containing more detail'); a 'Topic Outline' supplementing the lecture and filling in more detail and directed reading in the texts provided.

Research in legal databases/texts available from the library.

Independent work preparing to discuss the legal principles and details of the law relevant to the topic area and analysing the situations in the Workshop case studies and their legal implications and the rights and remedies of the parties involved.

For the Seminars students are required to develop their knowledge of the legal topic further and to use the same techniques as in the preparation for the Workshops to be able to deal with the seminar specific case studies; some of which will be unseen.

For both seminars and workshops students are expected to be able to present brief outlines of and/or commentary on the relevant law; their analysis of specific problems and their 'solutions' to specific case studies to the group.

It is anticipated that students will need to engage in approx. 4 hours work in preparation for all face to face sessions and in reflection and reinforcement following a session.

Contact Hours:

Full Time CPE:

The basic class contact pattern is as follows:

1 hour per week plenary session

1 hour per week seminar discussion (max 12 students per seminar)

2 hours per fortnight workshop sessions (ie combined seminar groups; max 3 seminar groups) for purposes of interactive consideration of practical tasks and discussion of current syllabus topic.

In any given academic year, there will normally be:

15 one hour lectures, including introductory and revision lectures; □

12 hours of workshops (6 x 2 hours), including a revision workshop;

10 seminars (including one cycle of revision seminars).

Consequently, in any academic year, there will normally be 37 hours of contact time for each student.

Part Time CPE:

In any academic year, the basic class contact for the subject is normally as follows:

At the September Induction tuition session:

1 hour subject introductory lecture

At the five subsequent tuition sessions:

3 ½ hours with tutor. Normally split into 1.5 hours in plenary session and 2 hours in seminar groups

Consequently, in any academic year, there will normally be 18.5 hours of contact time.

Part 3: Assessment

Obligations I (Contract Law) is taught and examined in the same Teaching Block of the Diploma as Obligations II (Law of Tort), Criminal Law and Public Law. In any given academic year, there will be a coursework in two of these four subjects. Consequently, in alternate years, there will be assessed coursework in Obligations I (Contract Law) In every academic year, there will be an examination in each of the four subjects.

Therefore assessment in any given academic year takes the form of either:

Coursework and Examination:

An online examination (Component A, 75% of the module mark), to be completed within a 24 hour window, at the end of the Teaching Block. Students will be required to answer no more than three questions from a minimum of six questions (3750 words). The examination requires students to adapt their knowledge and demonstrate their understanding of the law in relation to novel situations and under time constraint.

A coursework task (Component B, 25% of the module mark) set on a syllabus topic requiring students to demonstrate their ability to research a topic and to produce an appropriate response to the task set. For example, this may take the form of a critical analysis of the syllabus topic, an evaluative response to proposed reforms of the law in that context; advice to a hypothetical client based on a factual scenario provided by the tutor; the draft of a short scholarly article or conference paper etc.

Or:

Examination only:

An online examination (Component A, 100% of the module mark), to be completed within a 24 hour window, at the end of the Teaching Block. Students will be required to answer four questions from a choice of eight questions (4500 words). The examination requires students to adapt their knowledge and demonstrate their understanding of the law in relation to novel situations and under time constraint.

All students are provided with a voluntary opportunity to sit at least 1 test paper (made available electronically) before the formal and summative assessment by examination takes place.

First Sit Components	Final Assessment	Element weighting	Description
Examination (Online) - Component A	✓	100 %	Online examination (up to 4500 words if exam only, 3750 words if exam and coursework)
Resit Components	Final Assessment	Element weighting	Description
Examination (Online) - Component A	✓	100 %	Examination online (up to 4500 words if exam only, up to 3750 words if exam and coursework)
