Relational power: New perspectives on power in organisations
Using the University Library's print and electronic resources to write a review of theoretical and empirical literature

Teaching and Learning Methods: Teaching Strategy – Classes offer a combination of formal lectures with a variety of participative activities, including case studies, role play, self diagnostic exercises, problem-solving activities and group discussion. The module's participative ethos attributes equal value to the contribution of tutors and students in exploring, evaluating and creating theory, and in applying knowledge to the organisational context. This approach promotes the ability to define, obtain, analyse and evaluate information quickly and rigorously, and communicate conclusions and recommendations to team colleagues and professional and academic audiences in a range of formats.

Learning Strategy – Students will need to carry out reading (of set texts, and other preparatory material including case studies) before class, and their learning will be enhanced by group discussion before, during and after formal classes.

The study skills web page provides support and guidance in a range of areas, and specific guidance will be provided by tutors on sources of information for students' work, including web- and library-based sources. This is in addition to support provided in other modules of the programme.

Blackboard – This module is supported by Blackboard, where students will be able to find all necessary module documentation, including detailed session outlines, instructions for preparatory reading, assessment instructions and guidance on further reading.

Contact Hours:

36 hours (12 x 3 hour sessions)

Part 3: Assessment

As this module encourages students to engage critically and in some depth with a wide range of literature, and to assess the implications of this literature for professional practice in an organisational setting, assessment is also intended to develop and assess these approaches to learning and its implementation. All assessment requires students to review theory and knowledge in the context of their own practice and the context of organisations' internal environment, including (where appropriate) students' own employing organisation.

Formative assessment occurs throughout the module in tutors' written response to students' written proposals for each of the module's two items of assessment. Summative assessment takes place at the end of the module, and has two components. Component A is an online test, and Component B is submitted as coursework. Together these assessments will enable students to demonstrate that they have achieved the learning outcomes, and covered the syllabus.

Specific assessment criteria for both components will be published in the module handbook/outline each year.
