The workshop-based approach to teaching and learning is designed to enable the student to develop the independent research, analytical and reflective skills required for successful completion of a postgraduate level course. Students will need to complete the necessary preparatory reading and study of any set case materials in advance of each workshop. From each workshop, the student will be expected to have developed a general mastery of the subject under consideration. In addition, students will be expected to raise, critically assess and defend different points of view on controversial issues in class and to make presentations to the class on their own and in groups.

Scheduled contact is supplemented by independent learning structured around reading and questions set in advance. In addition, students are encouraged to attend seminars organised by the Centre for Legal Research and the Research Units of the Department of Law.

Part 3: Assessment

Learning outcomes will be assessed by oral presentation and written coursework in the form of blogs. Assessment questions will be set by tutors. Both assessments require students to undertake independent research building on material covered in the workshop sessions.

Assessment questions for both oral assessments and written coursework are designed to test students' understanding of the topics covered in the workshop sessions, the extent to which they have engaged critically with complex materials presented in the module as well as their ability to conduct research in relation to the topics covered. Both assessments will provide students with opportunities to present structured arguments, to recognise problems and identify solutions.

In addition, the coursework assessment will require students to demonstrate the ability to write clearly and precisely within a tight word limit. The oral presentation will also test oral presentation skills and provide an opportunity to answer questions and to demonstrate a depth of understanding and the ability to reflect independently on the material.

Formative assessment opportunities are provided in workshops throughout the module.
