STUDENT AND ACADEMIC SERVICES

Developing work from initial research

Manipulation of media

Making/production techniques

Problem solving, information gathering and documentation

Awareness of potential of tools/equipment within the Department, including appropriate health and safety certification, relevant to practice in Fine Arts

Developing a sensitivity to appropriate media/materials to fit the idea/concept

Teaching and Learning Methods: The module is typically delivered via projects, seminars, group critiques, workshops, individual critique and independent study. Teaching sessions challenge students' pre-conceptions about their subject discipline, develop their awareness of the creative opportunities afforded within it and introduce a skills base that supports creative development.

Typically such teaching sessions encourage students to take a pro-active approach to learning and studio practice using a variety of materials and methods.

The development of analytical and evaluative skills is supported and encouraged through group discussion in group critiques and activities and through individual tutorials. Students are encouraged to develop personal skills and approaches throughout the module, in order for them to understand the relevance of methodology.

Student progression and guidance is provided through:

-group work that focuses on developing personal methodologies, time-keeping, critical awareness and organisational skills

-individual tutorials

-lectures

-workshops

-peer group presentations

Scheduled learning includes lectures, group critiques, tutorials, project supervision, demonstration, practical classes and workshops; fieldwork; external visits; supervised time in studio/workshop.

Independent learning includes hours engaged in studio practice, independent workshops activity, with essential reading, assignment preparation and completion etc.

Students can expect a total of 108 hours scheduled contact time for this module within the context of their other learning and teaching activities. This includes tutorials, group crits, lectures, seminars, site visits / field trips, studio-based sessions, inductions, workshops, field work, work-based learning or project supervision.

Contact time may also take a synchronous virtual form rather than face-to-face, through the use of email discussion groups, virtual learning environments (VLEs) and other technology-aided means. It can also take place in a work-based setting.

Part 3: Assessment

STUDENT AND ACADEMIC SERVICES

Assessment strategies within the programme that this module contributes to reflect the Faculty of Art, Creative Industries and Education's philosophy which considers assessment to be part of the learning process.

Formative and summative assessments are designed to provide the opportunity for students to understand and reflect upon their achievements, and to support the monitoring of progress by tutors and students. Assessment methods used are varied, are relevant in demonstrating achievement to both academic and industry stakeholders, and form a coherent programme of assessment which is designed to offer students the maximum opportunity to demonstrate the skills, knowledge and experience that they have gained through the course of study, as well as to support ongoing and continuous improvement in their individual creative practice and development as practitioner-researchers.

The principle of 'learning through making' is core to learning strategies in the Department of Creative Industries – these learning activities are then expanded into and through an exploration of contemporary practice in relevant and related subject areas.

At assessment, therefore, students are expected to present evidence of work which demonstrates engagement with the minimum number of learning hours for the module (contact and independent study hours).

Forms of assessment used as part of the overall programme include:

Presentation and participation in studio-critique

Poster presentation

Group and individual visual presentations

Group and individual verbal presentations

Written Assignments – forms of writing relevant to the creative industries, including academic/essay and industry focused/report writing

Group critiques

Peer and self-assessment

Evaluative and reflective outcomes, including visual, verbal and written

Formative and summative assessment activities that involve students participating in the evaluation of presented work (their own and others') take place throughout the programme. Participation in and attendance at these sessions forms part of the assessed content of the module as a result of this.

Feedback (verbal and/or in writing) at regular points throughout the module provides students with a clear understanding of their progress and advice about how this can be improved.
