Outline syllabus: Working with a Director, as ideas are developed you will be involved in discussions and decision-making processes with various departments, such as design, lighting, sound, construction and marketing.

You will observe rehearsals and provide a sounding-board for the director. You may be invited to conduct rehearsals alongside and in the absence of the director and may be made responsible for rehearsing selected scenes. You will liaise with all other departments at the instigation of, or in the absence of, the director and will be involved in final lighting, technical and dress rehearsals leading to the first performance.

You may be required to monitor public performances on behalf of the director, reporting any problems or, as appropriate, devising solutions.

Part 3: Teaching and learning methods

Teaching and learning methods: The main body of the module will be delivered through practical attachment to the designated director in all aspects of realising a production in a public theatre. To pass this module you must successfully pass each of the elements listed below. If you fail an element you will need to re-sit it.

Component A

1. Assessment of the execution of the roles of assistant director on a public theatre production. This will include preparation and research, rehearsal etiquette (including technical rehearsals) and insightful note-giving in performance.

The directors of the productions and course tutor will be the main assessors for this piece. Assessment will also draw on additional feedback taken from other teaching or technical staff working on each of the productions.

2. A detailed self-reflective journal describing and critiquing the rehearsal and production process and the assistant director's part in it.

The reflective journals will be assessed by the course tutor and second marked by another tutor but not the production director.
