Syllabus Outline	The module will focus upon legal approaches to Criminal Law and the interpretation of statute and common law in context, and also developing an in-depth approach to examining reform of an area of the criminal law which will entail researching that area of the law and examining the wider context in which reform takes place. Precise course content will vary from year to year but the following is an indicative list of areas that may be covered: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Homicide – murder, voluntary and involuntary manslaughter, • Theft, Burglary, Robbery and Fraud, • Sexual Offences, • Non-Fatal Offences Against the Person, • Defences for example insanity, automatism, self defence, intoxication, duress and necessity, • The legal framework within which criminal law operates, • Terrorism, • Inchoate crimes. In relation to the above topics the approach will be to examine the current law, consider recent developments, assess proposals for reform, explore comparative approaches and identify some of the theoretical underpinnings of the current legal approach. Where the topic concerns an area of law that has changed considerably in recent years, the impact of the European Convention for the Protection of Human Rights and Fundamental Freedoms will be considered and, where the legal landscape is politically charged and the media and pressure groups have considerable interest, the module will seek to provide students with the opportunity to view the subject within this framework, and to consider the extent to which law reform shapes or is shaped by societal attitudes.
Contact Hours/Scheduled Hours	The module is delivered via a mix of lectures and workshops, timetabled across semester 1 and 2. Web based materials are used to support the learning environment via the library web site and the student experience is supported through the use of a virtual learning environment. The average class contact for students is 3 hours per week. Workshops link directly to lectures and the practicing of skills, particularly those of problem solving, teamwork, researching and communicating legal arguments in both a written and verbal format.
Teaching and Learning Methods	The module will be taught by means of weekly 2 hour lectures and fortnightly 2 hour workshops during which students will have the opportunity to: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • acquire knowledge of major concepts, values and principles of the criminal legal system(s) studied and be encouraged to apply that knowledge to problem solving, making legal arguments and other assessed work,

- acquire subject specific knowledge and learn to interpret, evaluate and analyse primary and secondary sources of criminal law,
- learn about legal reasoning in relation to the criminal law,
- discuss relevant legal issues,
- learn to analyse and solve problems based on criminal law offences and defences,
- develop report writing and presentation/advocacy skills,
- discuss, evaluate and analyse the social, political and moral context in which the legal debate takes place,
- develop research skills,
- develop time management skills,
- develop group working skills,
- practice individual and group oral presentations.

In addition the module is supported by on-line materials which will enable students to test their understanding of the lecture and workshop content.

Key Information Sets Information

Key Information Sets (KIS) are produced at programme level for all programmes that this module contributes to, which is a requirement set by HESA/HEFCE. KIS are comparable sets of standardised information about undergraduate courses allowing prospective students to compare and contrast between programmes they are interested in applying for.

Reading Strategy

Where possible, essential reading to accompany the workshops will be based on digitised chapter materials, the workshop handbook and electronic online resources. Library 'hands on' training workshops in approaches to using library and electronic sources to research the law are provided within the first year programme. Guidance to some key authors and journal titles available through the Library is given in the module handbook.

Currently there are a number of textbooks which are suitable for recommendation as core texts. As the criminal law develops and new textbooks are produced so the choice of textbook varies; students are informed of the choice through the module handbook. Textbooks such as Martin J. and Storey T., (2010) Unlocking Criminal Law, 3rd edit, Hodder and Stoughton or Clarkson C M V, Keating H M, and Cunningham S R (2010) Criminal Law Text and Materials, 7th edit, Sweet and Maxwell, may be recommended.

Where appropriate materials will be digitised or study packs created to support learning on the course. In addition the workshop handbook and lecture notes contain materials to support learning.

General Texts: this list is up to date at the time of module specification approval. The most recent versions of the texts are recommended to students for further reading should they wish to purchase more textbooks.

Ashworth A., (2009) Principles of the Criminal Law, 7th edit, Oxford University Press

Clarkson C M V, (2005), Understanding Criminal Law, 4th edit, Sweet and Maxwell

McAlhone C and Huxley - Binns R., (2010) Criminal Law – The Fundamentals, 2nd edit, Sweet and Maxwell

Simester A.P. and Sullivan G.R., (2010) Criminal Law Theory and Doctrine, 4th edit, Hart
