Section 2: Programme Overview, Aims and Learning Outcomes

Part A: Programme Overview, Aims and Learning Outcomes

Overview: The BSc (Hons) Sociology with Psychology is a programme that draws on the combined knowledge and experience of two related and well established disciplines. At Level 1 the programme aims to provide students with a thorough grounding in the related disciplines of Sociology and Psychology. At Levels 2 and 3, the programme is designed to help students develop an in-depth and detailed understanding of Sociology whilst also studying aspects of Psychology to an advanced level.

Features of the programme: Induction Programme for orientation and study skills.

Research-led and research-informed teaching.

Core social science curriculum designed to deliver key skills in critical thinking, employability and research methods and placement opportunities for students.

Detailed student handbooks and module guides.

Extensive specialist library.

On-line learning resources, internet, intranet and email access.

Dedicated office hours for all staff, student email system, trained counsellors for both pastoral and academic support.

Personal Academic Tutors.

Specialist Psychology Interactive Labs.

Equipment, resources, and technical and instructing staff for media production.

A strong emphasis on developing analytical and critical skills.

A lively relationship between theory and practice.

The Sociology and Psychology staff teams contribute to a wide range of scholarship and professional activities which feed into teaching activities. Many operate within the departmental research centers the Centre for Appearance Studies, the Centre for Health and Clinical Research and the Centre for Understanding Social Practices.

Research is integrated into teaching throughout this programme. Sessions are informed by activities of relevant staff research, and the departmental research strengths are reflected in the design of the curriculum. The curriculum of the core module Social Transformations (UZSST5-30-2) incorporates work carried out by Dr. Graham Taylor on globalization and research undertaken by Dr. Andrew Mathers and Dr. Graham Taylor on globalization and social movements. The level 3 module Bodies, Technology and Society (UZSSSQ-30-3) is based around research undertaken in the Centre for Health and Clinical Research by Prof. Julie Kent.

Students are able to engage with research active staff through diverse means which may include, for example, supervision of final year projects, volunteer research placements and support in attendance at relevant undergraduate conferences. Extra-curricular activities organized outside formal teaching sessions support the strengthening of associations between departmental research activity and student learning.

Educational Aims: In particular the programme aims to:

Produce ready and able graduates. Graduates who are active citizens, making a real contribution to their communities, workplaces and society. Graduates with the skills, knowledge, attitude and confidence to create, critique, and make a difference to the world beyond university. Graduates who are prepared for lifelong learning, personal-development, excellence and success in whatever fields they choose to work and participate. The core curriculum of the programme, in particular, is designed with this objective in mind.

Provide a general educational experience through which students will acquire a range of cognitive and analytical skills and general transferable skills in relation to critical thinking, research and employability that will provide a foundation for independent research, further graduate studies and career development across a broad range of professions and occupations. Examples of these skills include judging and evaluating evidence, data collection and interpretation, synthesizing information and formulating reasoned arguments.

Encourage critical analysis and evaluation of Sociological and Psychological theories, ideas and issues from different sources and perspectives.

Foster critical study, collaborative, co-operative and, independent learning. This aim includes the encouragement of reflexive self-awareness in group oriented and individual research and writing tasks. Reflexive self-awareness is also encouraged in regard to the student's development as a competent and thoughtful social researcher.

Teach academically challenging and vocationally relevant modules in Sociology and Psychology.

Provide an educational experience that recognizes the importance of digital media and digital technology in the contemporary world and that involves the application and utilization of digital technology to teaching and learning across the programme.

Provide students with the skills that will enable them to develop a practice-oriented approach to social enquiry including the ability to apply sociological and psychological theories and concepts to 'real world' issues, problems and processes.

Provide an outward facing set of educational opportunities that include the opportunity to engage with and provide support to a range of partners and stakeholders in the Bristol area through placements, partnerships and community-focussed research.

Provide an inclusive programme that acknowledges the wide diversity of student learning styles, experiences and interests through provision of a flexible and varied programme.

Provide a programme enriched by research undertaken by the sociology and psychology staff.

Assessment strategy: Knowledge and Understanding (subject specific):

Modules are assessed through a range of methods including essays, learning logs, critical reflection, seminar presentations, article and book reviews, annotated bibliographies, problem-based learning tasks; viva; extended essays and projects.

Intellectual Skills (generic):

Modules are assessed through a range of methods including essays, learning logs, critical reflection, seminar presentations, article and book reviews, annotated bibliographies, problem-based learning tasks; viva; extended essays and projects.

Subject/Professional/Practical Skills (subject specific):

Skills are assessed across a range of assessment methods. They are demonstrated at their highest level in the project/placement module, where students have to demonstrate both understanding and the ability to apply this understanding in a practical applied context. In compulsory modules students have the opportunity to focus explicitly on social and psychological issues and public and civic policy issues specifically in the core level 2 module Making a Difference to Self and Society.

Transferable Skills and other attributes (generic):

The full range of assessments across the three levels of the programme contribute positively to the development and enhancement of transferable skills. Additionally, transferable skills are inculcated as students are required to work to strict assessment deadlines and, therefore, to develop skills of organisation, time management and effective use of information.

Part C: Higher Education Achievement Record (HEAR) Synopsis

Sociology is a critical and analytical subject area that focusses on developing an understanding of social institutions, social relations and social inequalities in a contemporary, historical and comparative perspective. Sociology at UWE is also an applied discipline and across the Programme students are able to apply sociological and psychological ideas and concepts to 'real world' situations and everyday experiences. Throughout their degree students will experience a range of learning (online/offline), teaching (lectures, seminars, workshops and TEL) and assessment (essays, exams, case studies, presentations) techniques. Consequentially, a sociology with psychology degree opens graduates up to a range of graduate level positions, including work in social work, teaching, public administration, police service, probation service, prison service, personnel management, charities and Third Sector organizations, welfare and community organizations and the business, finance and information sectors.

Part D: External Reference Points and Benchmarks

Description of how the following reference points and benchmarks have been used in the design of the programme:

QAA Benchmarks for Sociology

UWE 2020 Vision

Subject Group Research Projects and Activity

The QAA subject benchmark statements for Sociology have informed the design of the Programme. The benchmarks were consulted during the planning process and at each stage of the design and development of the programme. They have influenced the selection of the educational aims and learning outcomes against which the teaching, learning and assessment processes have been specified.

University teaching and learning policies are embedded in the educational aims and learning outcomes of the programme with specific reference to the University's 2020 vision. The Sociology Programme is practice-oriented and applied in orientation and aims to deliver an outstanding learning opportunity supported by advanced digital technologies. The Programme aims to produce graduates ready and able to realize their full potential, make a positive contribution to society and their chosen field of employment or further study and play their full part in the development of a sustainable global society and knowledge economy.

The Programme also embodies the vision for social sciences at UWE and the following principles and priorities are embedded within teaching and learning approaches: making a difference to self and society; public engagement and citizenship; public administration and governance; public health and well-being; and with Bristol, for Bristol and beyond Bristol.

The research, scholarly and knowledge exchange activities and interests of staff have shaped the wide ranging sociological provision at all levels of the programme. In particular the influence is evidenced by the varied and stimulating choice of option modules at level 3.

Feedback from student surveys and feedback from student representatives in a variety of deliberative fora have contributed to the design of the Programme and this is reflected in the assessment, delivery and content of modules.

Through consultation with careers and related services, this Programme has been designed to incorporate key skills and attributes identified by employers. Further opportunities to develop engagement with employers views will derive from growing networks established through core features of the curriculum; notably work-based and community learning activities aimed at developing students transferable skills, professionalism, self-confidence, civic leadership and other attributes described under our core educational aims.

Part E: Regulations

Approved to University Regulations and Procedures.
