For coding purposes, a numerical sequence (1, 2, 3 etc.) should be used for successive programme specifications where 2 replaces 1, and where there are no concurrent specifications. A sequential decimal numbering (1.1; 1.2, 2.1; 2.2 etc) should be used where there are different and concurrent programme specifications

Section 2: Educational aims of the programme

The primary educational aim of the programme is to develop the knowledge and skills needed by those who are and aspire to be coaches and/or mentors within an organisational context. The Post graduate Certificate is offered on a modular, flexible delivery pattern and subsequently the aims will vary according to the modules selected.

It is recommended that students select the following four modules as they both provide a firm foundation for both their practice and further academic study and link with the ILM professional qualifications offered by UWE: Coaching and Mentoring, Group facilitation, Personal Mastery in Leadership and leading and Managing People.

The programme aims to provide the students with:

- a critical understanding of contemporary theory, practice and research relevant to coaching and mentoring within an organisational context
- conceptual understanding that enables them to evaluate critically current research and scholarship in this field
- interpersonal, learning and research knowledge, tools and techniques that are necessary for effective and skilled performance in the practice of coaching and mentoring
- a developed understanding of the diverse roles, relationships and responsibilities of coaches and mentors within an organisational context
- the capacity to become reflective and autonomous learners as an integral part of their leadership, coaching and mentoring practice and development
- a capacity to develop their own authentic approach and an understanding of the impact of their own mental and physical well-being on the coaching and mentoring relationship

On completion of the Coaching and Mentoring module along with three other modules within the specification students will be able to:

- deal with complex issues both systematically and creatively, and make sound judgements in the absence of complete data
- demonstrate self-direction and originality in tackling and solving problems, and act autonomously in planning and implementing tasks at a professional or equivalent level
- continue to advance their knowledge and understanding, and to develop new skills to a high level
- facilitate clients in discovering and realising the client's own potential
- contract effectively with organisations and individuals in the context of professional and personal ethics and codes of practice

Rationale for Stand-alone Postgraduate Certificate qualification

The growth in coaching and mentoring in the workplace has continued to grow since the inception of the MSc in Coaching and Mentoring in 2009, with organisations as diverse as Cornwall Council and the MOD striving to develop a coaching culture.

There is also a move to make the practice of coaching and mentoring become more professionalised with recognised monitoring, qualifications and regulations. This shift has resulted in more requests for academic and professional qualifications.

The demand for UWE's MSc Coaching and Mentoring programme over the two years of its existence has been consistent but small. However, the demand for the single module in coaching and mentoring has remained consistently high, with three runs of the module being the norm annually and a new Executive Coaching module has been created and developed for an outside consultancy coaching organisation.

The linking of two of the MSc Coaching and Mentoring modules, Coaching and Mentoring and Leading and Managing People, with the ILM level 7 Certificate in Executive Coaching and Leadership Mentoring has proved to be very attractive to external customers, as shown by the high demand and consistently excellent evaluations and feedback from both customers and ILM External Verifiers.

Our experience has shown that once students have achieved 30 academic credits by completing these two modules and gained their ILM certificate at least 50% wish to continue their studies by completing another 30 postgraduate credits to achieve the Postgraduate Certificate.

Section 3: Learning outcomes of the programme

The post graduate certificate is offered on a modular basis with only the Coaching and Mentoring module being compulsory. Specific learning outcomes are therefore dependent on the modules studied.

The award route provides opportunities for students to develop and demonstrate knowledge and understanding, qualities, skills and other attributes in the following areas: ...

A Knowledge and understanding

Section 6: Assessment Regulations

All assessment is governed by the University's current Academic Regulations and Procedures

Section 7: Student learning: distinctive features and support

7.1 CURRICULUM DESIGN CONTENT AND ORGANISATION

The programme is designed and delivered within a postgraduate modular scheme which allows credit accumulation and flexibility. Students on the programme are typically professionals who wish to study part time while undertaking demanding job roles. To provide flexibility and accommodate different study patterns and individual need, the programme is also offered on a modular and short course basis (including ILM Level 7 Certificate in Executive Coaching and Leadership Mentoring). We are finding that a significant proportion of students enrolling on the ILM Level 7 Certificate go on to complete the PG Certificate phase.

Students study the Coaching and Mentoring module first, to act as a foundation to the teaching on the other modules.

The PG Certificate Coaching and Mentoring meets a demand from both practicing coaches and mentors and from line managers looking to develop their coaching and mentoring skills within the region; as the profession expands and the quality of practitioners becomes more variable, a recognised academic qualification is seen as an important badge of proficiency to practice. A plethora of often contradictory models and approaches are promoted through the literature and this programme has been designed to encourage participants to critically evaluate these models and develop their own authentic style.

The collaborative nature of the programme enables students to develop and manage their learning and skills in the context of a vibrant learning community – an important feature when many are sole practitioners or performing coaching and mentoring as a part of their role. Student and organisational feedback on the programme is extremely positive, with a particular strength being the diverse student body, drawn from both practicing coaches/mentors and leaders and managers.

The PG Certificate in Coaching and Mentoring provides a Masters level grounding in the key disciplines of coaching and mentoring in an organisational context.

7.2 TEACHING, LEARNING & ASSESSMENT

This programme is designed in support of the University Learning and Teaching and Assessment Strategy which is designed to underpin all programmes. The vision for the strategy is that: 'We will become an inclusive and welcoming learning community, actively engaged with global society and based on values of mutual respect, critical engagement and self-awareness'

The strategy contains 6 key aims, each with a number of objectives, which are linked and build cumulatively on each other. The aims are listed below:

1. To be a university that is learning centred in all that it does.

2. To develop approaches to learning, teaching and assessment that are underpinned by shared values and ethical frameworks, sound health and safety practices and informed by research and professional practice.
3. To develop inclusive, flexible and accessible curricula, learning spaces and resources that enable personalized learning in campus, placement and work-based settings.
4. To provide diverse modes of assessment both for and of learning.
5. To develop learners who know and value themselves as open-minded, reflective and interdependent learners, and participants, employees, self-employed professional and entrepreneurs in global settings and as global citizens.
6. To develop self-critical learners who value others as collaborators in their learning and co-constructors of knowledge and its exchange.

The strategy is designed to be continuously evolving and provides a base for further refinement and development. An important reality check for the statements above is the extent to which students enrolled on our programmes can verify their experiences of learning, teaching and assessment in the light of the strategy aims and objectives. Feedback from students through module and programme evaluations and programme management committees is critical to the successful achievement of our vision.

The teaching and learning and assessment strategy of UWE encourages students to take responsibility for aspects of their learning and staff to take responsibility for facilitating that learning. The balance of student and staff responsibility varies according to individual student profiles, academic level and according to the nature of the learning outcomes the students are expected to meet. Ultimately, the aim of this programme is to enable students to progress to a high level of autonomy in learning and thus engender lifelong learning within a socially inclusive environment.

To achieve this on the PG Certificate Coaching and Mentoring, a variety of learning approaches have been integrated throughout the programme with an overall emphasis on active student participation. Guided learning (including lectures, tutorials, seminars, workshops, visiting speakers, on-line and networked learning, case studies), group learning and independent learning are used throughout the programme. For example, by splitting the group into small action learning sets they are encouraged to develop their own action plans and move their learning into practice, sharing their experiences and grounding their learning in the realities of the work place.

The teaching and learning methods used in the programme intend to challenge the existing perspectives of the students and encourage creative thinking. Thus many of the approaches used, including those that are case based, set concepts and problems in a wide range of contexts to add depth and complexity and to ensure an applied focus. Group learning approaches will also challenge students in a number of ways that will play a significant role in learning about leading and managing.

Teaching is based on research literature, professional experience and significant use of debate and discussion. The emphasis on using real examples of workplace scenarios, often from students' own experience, places the focus on the very practical nature of learning about coaching and mentoring in an organisational context. This is embedded in the programme as a whole. In addition, a range of teaching approaches are employed to give depth and breadth to the learning experience. For example, through didactic pedagogy students are challenged to defend their thinking.

Some modules introduce generally applicable principles of change management and leadership, and so, apart from some tailoring of case studies and focusing upon priorities for coaches and mentors, they are delivered to the same specification as those delivered on other leadership and management programmes (for example, Leading and Managing People, Building Effective Working Relationships). Other modules, however, address topics of general importance but have been focused upon the specific practical demands of the coaching and mentoring professions (for example, Coaching and Mentoring, Professional Practice in Executive Coaching and Leadership Mentoring).

The programme appeals to practicing coaches/mentors, as well as leaders and managers who are undertaking coaching and /or mentoring interventions as part of their role.

Assessment is an integral part of the teaching and learning process. The range of assessments indicated have been incorporated to:

- test the students' ability to integrate concepts and theories and to apply them in practice;
- ascertain their learning strengths and weaknesses and continuing development needs;
- expose students to a variety of assessment methods in order to promote the growth of their life-long learning skills;
- test students' level of skills development.

The assessment strategy comprises of formal tutor assessment, informal tutor assessment and informal peer review and feedback. Formal testing of the knowledge base, intellectual, subject specific and transferable skills is through a combination of supervised mini projects, essays, learning portfolios, case studies and presentations. Informal testing of intellectual, subject specific and transferable skills is through class interaction during work on current academic research and understanding, case studies, practical exercises and experiential exercises.

The faculty supports the University's Academic Regulations and Procedures. Forms of assessment commonly used in controlled and non-controlled conditions assessment are: presentations, assignments self and peer assessments, individual and group projects and supervised projects.

LEARNING RESOURCES

All modules have teaching/learning resource guide

All modules have teaching/learning resource booklets, most have set texts in accordance with the university's Reading Strategy, and all also draw on publications and research from academic, industry and international organisation communities. Additional support is provided through the library and an extensive student computing network. All postgraduate modules use the institutional VLE – Blackboard – for web enhanced delivery and to thus provide students with 24/7 access to module information and resources on and off campus.

Students will be directed towards the University Library online Study Skills resources for the development of skills appropriate to the level and style of the module.

STUDENT SUPPORT AND GUIDANCE

Student support is provided by academic staff, usually module leaders, for all issues relating to the content, delivery and assessment of modules. The Faculty of Business and Law Student Advice Centre provides timely, accurate and confidential advice where necessary on all aspects of the provision, for example coursework and examination arrangements, late work and extenuating circumstances procedures, as well as personal issues such as problems with studying or meeting deadlines, financial matters, ill health and so on, including when relevant how to access the wider support provided by the University. Additional academic support and guidance is provided by the Programme Manager who is also responsible for ensuring the collection of and response to student feedback using student representatives and the Programme Management Committee. The faculty has a Student Experience Group that oversees the development and implementation of faculty policy concerning widening participation and student support and guidance.

Further student support is provided by the Business School through the postgraduate administration team, the Admissions Office and the International Office. Here, the international administrator provides support and organises specific activities to assist international students in adapting to life in the UK, such as an additional induction week, and the provision of specific literature to assist with their study.

All students have a formal induction process to socialise them to university life and to provide them with the means to access the support that they may require during their study at UWE. A student handbook documents this for students, as does the Business School website. There are a range of central services offered to students. These include: the Centre for Student Affairs for careers service and the university's counselling provision, information technology services, student accommodation, sports facilities, student union services, the Chaplaincy and the Centre for Performing Arts.

Support to students with disability is offered both at the faculty level under the remit of the Leader of Student Support & Guidance and centrally through the university's Disability Resource Service. This acts as a holistic service for disabled students and applicants to the University but also supports the academic and administrative staff members who work with disabled students.

Section 8 Reference points/benchmarks

This programme is designed in accordance with:

- The main findings of the report of the council for excellence in management and leadership (2002),
- Good Practice Leadership Development Criteria (see Appendix A)
- European Mentoring and Coaching Council (EMCC) Competence Standards 2007, Master Practitioner level (see Appendix B)
- Subject benchmarks (QAA Unit in Business and Management - QAA benchmarks for Postgraduate Management Programmes – QAA 158 02/07¹)

The programme design acknowledges the benchmarks for postgraduate business and management programmes. The programme meets the Type 1 'Specialist Masters' requirements in providing further career development for those in employment with a study of practice in a specialist area and a professional orientation. The programme draws from all the knowledge, understanding and skill domains indicated in the benchmarks, with an emphasis as indicated in the programme aims and objectives.

- Descriptor for a qualification at Masters (M) level: Masters degree – extracted from the Framework for Higher Education Qualifications in England, Wales and Northern Ireland, January 2001 (see Appendix C)

The QAA Postgraduate Qualification Descriptors provide a schedule of the standards adopted by the programme and they are also in line with current Faculty practice.

- The University's Mission Statement (UWE)
- University teaching and learning policies: UWE and Bristol Business School Teaching and Learning Strategy
- The SEEC Credit Level Descriptors 2001
- Bristol Business School Review of Postgraduate Programmes 2007

This programme specification provides a concise summary of the main features of the programme and the learning outcomes that a typical student might reasonably be expected to achieve and demonstrate if he/she takes full advantage of the learning opportunities that are provided. More detailed information on the learning outcomes, content and teaching, learning and assessment methods of individual modules can be found in module specifications. These will also be made available on the University Intranet.

Programme monitoring and review may lead to changes to approved programmes. There may be a time lag between approval of such changes/modifications and their incorporation into an authorised programme specification. Enquiries about any recent changes to the programme made since this specification was authorised should be made to the relevant Faculty Administrator. Other sources of information are:

The University's Disability Equality Scheme

The University philosophy is to integrate provision for disabled students within the services offered to all students at the University and so remove the barriers that can be disabling. It aims to provide an inclusive educational experience and so to respond fully to the spirit as well as the letter of current legislation (<http://www.uwe.ac.uk/info/policy.shtml>)

Good Practice Leadership Development Criteria

Blewett's (1997) "Themes"

- Clearly articulated goals
- Articulation of "in use" definition(s)
- Strong theoretical base
- Aware of conceptual and contextual developments
- Exposure to conceptual and practical experiential methodologies
- Use of multiple learning methods
- Assessment of learning
- Programme evaluation

Cacioppe (1998) "an integrated model for planning...elements in effective individual learning"

- Improved self-knowledge – through reflection
- Reshaping mindsets – 'surprises', acquiring new paradigms
- Action Learning – testing ideas in action
- Improved skills – need to experience development
- Observing leadership models – mentor, role models, staff behaviour
- Linked to organisation's strategy – relationship between learning and company strategy
- Global focus – cross cultural considerations
- Networking – collaborative (i.e., organisational) learning

Vaill (1996) "pedagogy of learning as a way of being" or "leaderly learning"

- Self directed – initiating actions as a consequence of learning
- Creative – exploration, discovery, 'process frontiers', new abilities
- Expressive – learning in and through expression, dialogue
- Feeling – feeling the meaning of events, intuition, meaning/sense making
- On-line – practice in real time in real world (v simulation and role plays)
- Continual – being a perpetual beginner
- Reflexive – attention to process in the midst of action, developing 1-6 above

APPENDIX C

EXTRACTS FROM THE FRAMEWORK FOR HIGHER EDUCATION QUALIFICATIONS IN ENGLAND, WALES AND NORTHERN IRELAND - JANUARY 2001

Descriptor for a qualification at Masters (M) level:

Masters degree

Masters degrees are awarded to students who have demonstrated:

- i) a systematic understanding of knowledge, and a critical awareness of current problems and/or new insights, much of which is at, or informed by, the forefront of their academic discipline, field of study, or area of professional practice;
- ii) a comprehensive understanding of techniques applicable to their own research or advanced scholarship;
- iii) originality in the application of knowledge, together with a practical understanding of how established techniques of research and enquiry are used to create and interpret knowledge in the discipline;
- iv) conceptual understanding that enables the student:
 - to evaluate critically current research and advanced scholarship in the discipline; and
 - to evaluate methodologies and develop critiques of them and, where appropriate, to propose new hypotheses.

Typically, holders of the qualification will be able to:

- a) deal with complex issues both systematically and creatively, make sound judgements in the absence of complete data, and communicate their conclusions clearly to specialist and non-specialist audiences;
- b) demonstrate self-direction and originality in tackling and solving problems, and act autonomously in planning and implementing tasks at a professional or equivalent level;
- c) continue to advance their knowledge and understanding, and to develop new skills to a high level;

and will have:

- d) the qualities and transferable skills necessary for employment requiring:
 - the exercise of initiative and personal responsibility;
 - decision-making in complex and unpredictable situations; and
 - the independent learning ability required for continuing professional development.
