Section 2: Educational aims of the programme

To equip students with knowledge and understanding of

- the English language in its own right, including variations across the globe, its use in texts and representation in dictionaries and its grammar and phonology (explicit knowledge of language: defining principle of LRS benchmark statement). Here, the field of Linguistics is drawn upon in order to deepen understanding of the language.
- the English language as a gateway to related thematic studies such as English in the modern world and Intercultural communication (intercultural awareness and understanding: defining principle of LRS benchmark statement).
- the relevance in this context of teaching English to speakers of other languages and the practical application of principles and methods to the English teaching environment.

In addition, the programme aims to develop

Section 3: Learning outcomes of the programme

- appropriate linguistic tools and metalanguage to describe and analyse the main features of the English language. The ability to use language creatively and precisely for a range of purposes and audiences is also developed in Genres, styles and registers.
- generic intellectual skills notably those of analysis, synthesis, evaluation and coherent presentation – in self-directed graduates possessing a high degree of literacy and English language awareness.
- key transferable skills emphasising self-motivation and self-reliance, co-operative interpersonal relations, information management, analysis, communication and critique.

This specification provides a concise summary of the main features of the programme and the learning outcomes that a typical student might reasonably be expected to achieve and demonstrate if he/she takes full advantage of the learning opportunities that are provided. More detailed information on the learning outcomes, content and teaching, learning and assessment methods of individual modules can be found in module specifications. These are available on the University Intranet.

Programme monitoring and review may lead to changes to approved programmes. There may be a time lag between approval of such changes/modifications and their incorporation into an authorised programme specification. Enquiries about any recent changes to the programme made since this specification was authorised should be made to the relevant Faculty Administrator.
